Independent Living Centre Expands Services and Welcomes New Leadership

Exciting changes are happening at the Independent Living Centre in Semington, Wiltshire, as the charity ramps up its efforts to support older individuals and those living with disabilities by welcoming two new members of staff – a second part-time Occupational Therapist, and a Centre Assistant, to the team. This means more appointments will be available, and waiting times will be reduced, making it quicker and easier for people to access the help they need.

Additionally, the Independent Living Centre is utilising their well-established and appreciated relationships with retailers and manufacturers to update the range of equipment available for assessment, including smart home technology and the expected installation of a rise and fall toilet.

In anticipation of these enhancements, the Centre is also preparing for a change in leadership. Neil Baker, the current Chief Executive, will be leaving in June for a new opportunity with Age UK Wiltshire, and the ILC staff and Trustees wish him all the best. Stepping into his role will be Chantelle Mead, the Centre Manager with eight years of dedicated service. Her familiarity with the organisation and passion for its mission make her the ideal candidate to lead the Independent Living Centre into its next chapter.

"We're thrilled to be expanding our services and welcoming Chantelle into her new role," said Nigel Harris, Chair at the Independent Living Centre. "These changes will enable us to better serve our community and ensure that everyone has the support they need to live independently and with dignity."
